Council members,

As you discuss renewal of the historic preservation program, I hope you might consider making it more compatible with affordable housing goals rather than at odds with them. Instead of offering incentives to enlarge the home, a financial incentive could be made to those owners who keep it in its historic scale, say within 1.25 times its current floor area. This could be a second type of historic designation or become the way the entire program runs. Instead of million-dollar-plus homes, we could keep a few more in the $600,000 realm for middle class workers, young families and empty nesters of our city.

Beyond the historic preservation program, substantially more of these lower priced homes could be kept if the city started a program to purchase them and immediately resell them with a deed-restricted size, recouping most of the money. Many people would be happier in these small homes than in small apartments.

Sincerely,

Robert Tully

Dear Mayor Leh and Members of the Louisville City Council,

I am writing to urge the Louisville City Council to authorize the filing of an amicus brief in support of Superior and Boulder County's petition for writ of certiorari in our case against Jefferson County and Rocky Mountain Metropolitan Airport.

The Colorado Court of Appeals acknowledged that airport proprietors, like Jefferson County, have authority to address noise impacts at their airports. But the Court also held that courts cannot order an airport proprietor to take those steps. That creates a serious problem for neighboring communities: there may be a recognized harm, and even a recognized ability to address it, but no enforceable path to require action.

That leaves local governments, and the residents we represent, with a right but no remedy.

This is precisely the kind of issue the Colorado Supreme Court should review.

At this stage, Louisville does not need to address the ultimate merits of the case or take a position on whether flight school traffic constitutes a public nuisance. The question is narrower: whether the Court of Appeals decision raises issues important enough to warrant Supreme Court review. It plainly does.

An amicus brief from Louisville would help demonstrate that this case is not merely a dispute between Superior, Boulder County, and Jefferson County. It is a regional issue affecting communities whose residents experience the impacts of RMMA operations but have no direct control over the airport itself. Louisville has residents who are negatively impacted by RMMA, and Louisville's perspective would help show the Court that the consequences of this decision extend beyond the named parties.

I also want to be direct about what is needed. A resolution of support would be appreciated, but it is not a substitute for an amicus brief and will not meaningfully assist the Colorado Supreme Court in deciding whether to accept review. The Court needs to

To the City Council: Here is a link to a youtube that spells out the perils of being a pedestrian in the age of these motorized vehicles being allowed on our sidewalks.

If a parent entrusts a child with a motorized vehicle, then they should be in agreement that that child is responsible and mature enough to ride in the bike lanes - and like all of us likely grew up without bike lanes, ride the bike on the street to the far right when a bike lane isn't there.

These kids (and adults) lose touch with what speed is - because they do nothing to work for that speed. And that speed is delivered by that heavy motor! All the more damaging....

I have now had 2 recent incidents as I've walked along the sidewalks of Via Appia. First of all, note that these are not excessively wide sidewalks - because they are for "walking". Not e-bikes.

The first incident, a few weeks ago, involved teenage boys - all on beefy e-bikes - coming down the sidewalk, straddling all across. If not for my pretty good hearing and that they were talking with one another, I sensed something coming upon me from behind and I turned around to see this "crowd" of bikes ready to do what? Just whiz by me? Who was going to call out "on your left", or "on your right"? None of them. So I stopped, and faced them down - made them stop and asked them what they thought they were doing. Clearly NONE had any idea of what their responsibility was to keep me, an unprotected pedestrian, safe as they were coming up from behind.

My thought: if parents trust their kids to have e-bikes, then they should "trust" that they safely bike on the streets in the bike lanes. Not on sidewalks!

But yesterday's incident really took the cake - a MOTHER (who should know better, who's probably been driving for well over a decade) with two young kids on the bike - all with helmets, etc - came up from behind me and said NOTHING. Again, even with the traffic on Via Appia, I had sensed/heard something and had turned JUST IN TIME to see her come past me. Again, NOTHING SAID to indicate they were coming upon me. With that bike, her weight, and the weight of the kids, that was well over 200 pounds coming toward me with no warning.

I shouted out as she went by saying she should've called out something to let me know her presence! What an idiot.

Had I not had the 1 second or so to react upon turning around and seeing her, I easily could've lost my balance and fallen in total surprise and shock as this sizeable motorized vehicle would've come within a few inches of me.

I'm still upset, with elevated blood pressure and shaking from the potential injury. It feels like we're to just fend for ourselves as speeds and forces well beyond "real bicycles" (like I've ridden for years) take over the sidewalks.

Are pedestrians in Louisville now supposed to walk with a rear-view mirror? Why aren't e-bikes banned on the sidewalks along which that I've paid my tax money to have bike lanes installed? Why am I taking my well-being into my hands every time I walk to and from the Rec Center?

I'm infuriated by how this is playing out - even adults who should know better take a pedestrian's well-being into secondary position as they think they're "safer" to come down the side-walk when a wide, protected bike lane is right there!! This is not just idiotic - it is gravely dangerous and something needs to be done about this.

The force of an e-bike is unlike a regular bike. We all know this - its weight, its speed, and the cavalier attitude of those who just think whizzing up and down a sidewalk is okay. It is not. What can be done? Why not have signage or a painted symbol on the sidewalks for "no e-bikes"? Cherry, Via Appia, Pine St. - let's get serious about bike lanes for bikes, and sidewalks for pedestrians.

hear directly from affected neighboring communities through a formal filing.

Broomfield and Lafayette are stepping forward in support, and we are grateful for their leadership. Louisville's voice would also matter. Filing an amicus brief would send a clear message to Louisville residents affected by RMMA that their City Council understands the seriousness of this issue and is willing to take meaningful action.

If the Colorado Supreme Court does not take this appeal, Colorado communities may be left without an effective way to address airport-related nuisances, even when the airport proprietor has the authority to act. That outcome should concern every community affected by airport operations outside its control.

For those reasons, I respectfully urge the Louisville City Council to authorize the filing of an amicus brief in support of Superior and Boulder County's petition for certiorari review.

Thank you for your consideration.

Respectfully,

MARK LACIS

Council Members,

I live in Louisville and am the current Chair of the Historical Museum Advisory Board. At the June 8 meeting of the HMAB, we discussed at length the recommendations of the HPT Task Force regarding the Historic Preservation Tax. The Board unanimously endorsed the recommendations of the Task Force and asked me to convey their position to you in advance of your June 16 meeting. We look forward to meeting with you and the HPC at the July meeting to discuss this important issue further.

Thank you for the work you do for the City.

Why did city Council cave to a minority of its citizenry to create division amongst its residents by planting those flags again at Cherry and McCaslin ?

Hi, 27 year resident here. Currently on Harp Street in the Parkwood neighborhood adjacent to Cottonwood Park just for context and reference.

Just a quick note on my recent observation of the way that the city of Charlotte manages streetside dining. Here's a photo. It's really no different than what you guys kindly do now except that the temporary features are the walkway and the dining is on the sidewalk directly next to the restaurants. I think that is a great approach because then you don't have patrons and servers walking across the public sidewalk and perhaps bumping into passersby. Additionally, the vehicles that pass so near are passing people walking by as opposed to driving.

About 2008, our daughter, Anna CHS '97, showed this lovely, San Diego area town to my husband and I and said "Someday, I'm living here because it reminds me so much of Louisville", our family's beloved home town for over twenty years. She bought a home there and loves it. Recently, La Mesa celebrated this new, wonderful, permanent banner. I saw these photos and thought "Why couldn't Louisville do the same (and also at times add the usual special event ones)?" Maybe a brief city-sponsored motto too for it?

Dear City Council Members and Planning Commission members, this (below) appeared on the internet this morning from one of the neighbors on the "Your Steel Ranch neighbors" website. I'd like to ask you to look into it. Perhaps there's more behind the situation that appears in this message, but it gives a very poor representation of Louisville and how we care for our disabled neighbors.

Please also see that this message reaches the appropriate person in the Parks and Recreation department. This shouldn't happen.

They were supervised by multiple adults and were just enjoying their morning. A City of Louisville Parks and Rec employee went up to them and told them they weren't welcome, they weren't allowed to be there, "no one wants disabled people around" and that because they have disabilities they would "wreck the place." These are CHILDREN. I did reach out to the city and haven't heard back. Shame on you Louisville. Do better."

Dear Mayor and Council,

I am dismayed, disheartened, and disappointed in the pathetic effort the City has show to celebrate Pride Month this year.

The “Pride Festival” was truly a joke...little more than a finger painting booth shoved to the side and out of the way were it wouldn’t and couldn’t attract much attention.

There are no Pride Flags displayed at Cherry and McCaslin. This annual installation was abandoned without, as near as I can tell, any public discussion and its absence has been noted by many.

The Pride Flag mural downtown has been replaced...by a tomato. A tomato.

While the Pride Flags at City facilities are nice, they are the only visible celebration of Pride Month in the City. It’s not enough. A citizen’s Pride Flags were stolen from their porch in the dead of night. The hate and vitriol engendered by a single post on the City’s Facebook page demonstrates for all to see why Pride Month remains import — indeed critical — even in supposedly educated and enlightened Louisville.

While Hanlon’s Razor would suggest stupidity as a benign explanation for this retrenchment of our traditional celebrations of Pride Month, I fear a more troubling reason...the City has decided defending its previous support of Pride Month with visible displays and public statements just wasn’t worth the effort. Easier to sit back, be silent, and avoid the confrontation with the homophobes and haters.

Silence is complicity, and your silence is deafening.

The good news is that there are 20 days left in Pride Month and there is still time to act. Install the Pride Flags as traditionally done at Cherry and McCaslin. Direct staff now to begin planning a more joyous and supportive Pride Month Festival for next year. Buy Pride t-shirts and wear them on the dais.

Act now, turn back the hate ad embrace the joy that is “Love Is Love”.

Michael

Subject: Formal Grievance: Failure to Investigate Staff Misconduct and Negligence of Redress

Dear Members of the City Council,

I am writing to formally log a grievance regarding a severe and ongoing lack of due diligence, professional follow-up, and administrative stonewalling by city administration officials, specifically Ms. Martin and Ms. Langley.

Ten months ago, I submitted a formal petition for redress concerning an incident at the local recreation center involving an employee ("Stuart") whose immature actions directly sabotaged my professional reputation. I had maintained a flawless record with zero complaints during my entire tenure utilizing the venue. Rather than executing a proper investigation into the matter, Ms. Martin issued a generic, boilerplate response regarding recreation center bylaws. This response carried an inappropriate, implied threat and entirely bypassed the core complaint.

Subsequently, I escalated the matter to Ms. Langley to address Ms. Martin's complete failure to investigate. Ms. Langley chose to entirely ignore my grievance, mirroring her subordinate's lack of due diligence. A comprehensive review of city files will confirm that neither individual has logged any notes, follow-up actions, or legitimate investigative findings regarding this matter.

This administrative failure is a profound disservice to the community. I proactively offered the city an incredible cultural and financial asset: a series of acclaimed children's books ("The Epic Adventures of Prince Ralphie: Into the Land of the Clockwatchers") that serve as powerful learning tools for local youth and adults alike. Instead of fostering collaboration with local artists who drive city arts revenue, the administration has subjected me to unacceptable, dismissive treatment. The artistic merit of this work can be easily verified by running a standard literary review critique on google AI mode, which establishes the series as a modern classic alongside peer works like Alice in Wonderland or The Chronicles of Narnia. The series continues to expand, with Book 2 now published and Books 3 and 4 slated for release by the end of this summer.

I expect a formal, written response from an authorized city representative to address my initial grievance and outline a path forward by the end of this business week (Friday, June 12, 2026).

If the city chooses to double down on this administrative negligence and fails to respond by the deadline, I will immediately move forward with formal legal action. This will include seeking financial penalties for damages to my professional reputation and the systemic denial of a fair administrative process. I prefer to build a collaborative future with the city around this literary series, but I am fully prepared to enforce the professional respect and legal redress I am owed through the courts.

I strongly advise the city to set aside bureaucratic pride, review the missing documentation, and consider its next steps very carefully.

Sincerely,

Robert Gerard & G. Spadafora

Original Date of Complaint: September 11, 2025

To: Rec Center Administration / City Management / Human Resources

From: Robert Mayles

Subject: Formal Written Complaint: Employee Harassment, Management Misconduct, and Retaliation

Executive Summary

This letter serves as a formal written complaint regarding a hostile environment at the Rec Center, specifically concerning ongoing workplace "mobbing" (systematic defamation and harassment), management's explicit refusal to investigate valid member grievances, and retaliatory threats to revoke my facility access without due cause.

1. Background and Failure of Due Diligence (March 2025)

Six months ago, I filed a counter-complaint with Ms. Martin regarding a lifeguard, Stuart, who was actively slandering my character to other pool staff. I explicitly advised management at that time that this behavior constitutes "mobbing"—a targeted campaign of defamation designed to socially or physically exclude an individual from a space. I requested an internal investigation. Based on recent events, it is clear that no such investigation occurred, no formal notes were retained, and Stuart's unchecked behavior has since escalated.

2. Incident on Tuesday, September 9, 2025

At approximately 3:30 PM, Stuart engaged in hostile, intimidating behavior, including a prolonged physical stare-down. Furthermore, the oncoming lifeguard's immediate hostile demeanor strongly indicated that Stuart had just finished defamatory "trash talk" or rumor-mongering regarding my character right before the shift change.

3. Administrative Misconduct and Legal Admissions (Wednesday, September 10, 2025)

On September 10 at 11:00 AM, I met with Ms. Martin and a staff member named Danny in the conference room to present facts, times, and staff details to facilitate an investigation. The response from management was a severe breach of administrative protocol:

- Refusal to Investigate: Danny flatly stated, "There is no, and will be no investigation."
- Admission of Surveillance: Danny admitted that Stuart had been contacting him every single time I visited the outdoor pool all summer. This directly confirms that staff have been actively targeting, tracking, and "bird-dogging" me without cause. (Note: Facility check-in logs will prove that I intentionally avoided the outdoor pool to prevent conflict, meaning Stuart is actively fabricating reports to management).
- Admission of Liability: By admitting to tracking my movements based on a staff member's unverified animus, Danny effectively exposed the Rec Center to significant legal liability regarding targeted harassment and discrimination.

4. Retaliation, Censorship, and Hostile Defense

During this meeting, Ms. Martin explicitly stated that she would refuse to read the transcript of my recent speech to City Council, and flatly rejected reading any future written correspondence from me. This is an unacceptable abdication of duty for a public facility administrator.

Furthermore, management issued an implicit threat to bar me from the facility on spurious grounds—specifically hinting that if I mention my children's books or career as an author to anyone on campus, it would be treated as a violation. This is a bad-faith distortion of facility rules meant to silence a member who is following proper complaint protocols.

5. Demand for Action

A public facility funded by tax dollars cannot be run as a personal fiefdom where management covers up its lack of due diligence by bullying the complainant. I have used this facility for a year with zero member or staff complaints against me. I simply want to use the pool in peace.

I demand the following actions be itemized and signed off on by mid June or I sue:

1. A formal, independent review of Stuart's ongoing harassment and defamation campaign.
2. A review of Ms. Martin and Danny's hostile administrative conduct and refusal to process grievances.
3. Written assurance that my facility access will not be altered or revoked based on fabricated, spurious, or retaliatory claims.
4. And, at this point, financial compensation for the injuries to my reputation incurred

Sincerely,

Robert Mayles

Dear City Council,

What was the reasoning behind aligning with the eastern plains rather than the mountains and foothills? Given the devastation (physically and emotionally) that Fire Families and our town has suffered I would have liked to have been aligned with the more restrictive of these 2 options.

We lost our home in the Fire and would much prefer stronger fire restrictions.

Has there been any thought given to a second vote?

Thank you,

Stage 1 fire restrictions lifted in Louisville

Boulder County Sheriff Curtis Johnson and the Board of County Commissioners on Tuesday rescinded Stage 1 fire restrictions in the eastern portion of unincorporated Boulder County. Because Louisville City Council members voted in March to align Louisville's fire restrictions with those in the unincorporated areas adjacent to the City, Louisville's stage 1 fire restrictions have also lifted, effective June 9.

Boulder County's decision follows a review of current fire danger conditions, including data from the National Weather Service and the National Fire Danger Rating System. Conditions in the plains area no longer meet the threshold for stage 1 restrictions. The mountain and foothills areas of Boulder County continue to face an elevated wildfire risk, and stage 1 restrictions remain in effect in those areas.

For more information about fire restrictions, see Boulder County's fire restrictions page.

Always practice fire safety

Regardless of fire restrictions, it's critical that everyone does their part to prevent wildfires. Always practice fire safety when burning or doing any activities that could create a spark.

I would personally like to thank City Council,(imagine that) for the decision "not" to use City resources to promote the "Pride" agenda by forcing people to stare at the Rainbow Flags for a month straight at McCaslin & Cherry this year.

This should be left to individuals that wish to support that lifestyle on their own property.

The new plantings are are a sign that the city is trying to actually beautify a part of this City, not having the chaos that a majority of this city doesn't care for is refreshing.

Thank You.

Looking forward to American Flags on that site for the 250th Birthday of the though.
